

Strathyre

Tracks and trails for walking and cycling.

Key

-  (2.25 miles) Stank Gorge walk
-  (4 miles) Loch Lubnaig walk
-  Other woodland trails

Strathyre

Loch Lubnaig walk

Follow the yellow marker posts for an off-road pushchair friendly walk which can also be biked, with lovely views across to Stirling and the Wallace monument.

Start: Strathyre Forest Retreat

Length: 6.3km/4 miles

Walk Time: Allow 2.5 hours

Difficulty: Easy

From the Forest Retreat facing Loch Lubnaig, the route follows the cycle path to the left.

Follow this path along with the loch shore to your right until you reach a burn with a white barrier.

Just past this, take the path to the left which climbs gently through Strathyre forest.

As the path reaches a high point ignore the path to the right and continue downhill slightly until you reach Stank Burn.

Ignore any smaller paths to the left or right and continue slightly uphill on the main logging road. You will then reach the highest point of the walk where you can hopefully enjoy views all around with the western slopes of Ben Ledi to your right.

Continue on and descend the path which will eventually loop around. Ignore a path which turns sharply to the right, the main path will then zig zag down to meet the cabin road.

Turn left and follow the road back to the cabins.

Stank Gorge walk

Follow the green marker posts for a walk up Stank gorge passing a lovely waterfall viewing.

Start: Strathyre Forest Retreat

Length: 3.5km/2.25 miles

Walk Time: Allow 1.75 hours

Difficulty: Moderate

From the Forest Retreat facing Loch Lubnaig, the route follows the cycle path to the left.

Follow this path along with the loch shore to your right until you reach a burn with a white barrier.

Just past this, take the path to the left which climbs gently through Strathyre forest.

As the path reaches its highest point ignore the path to the right and continue downhill slightly until you reach Stank Burn.

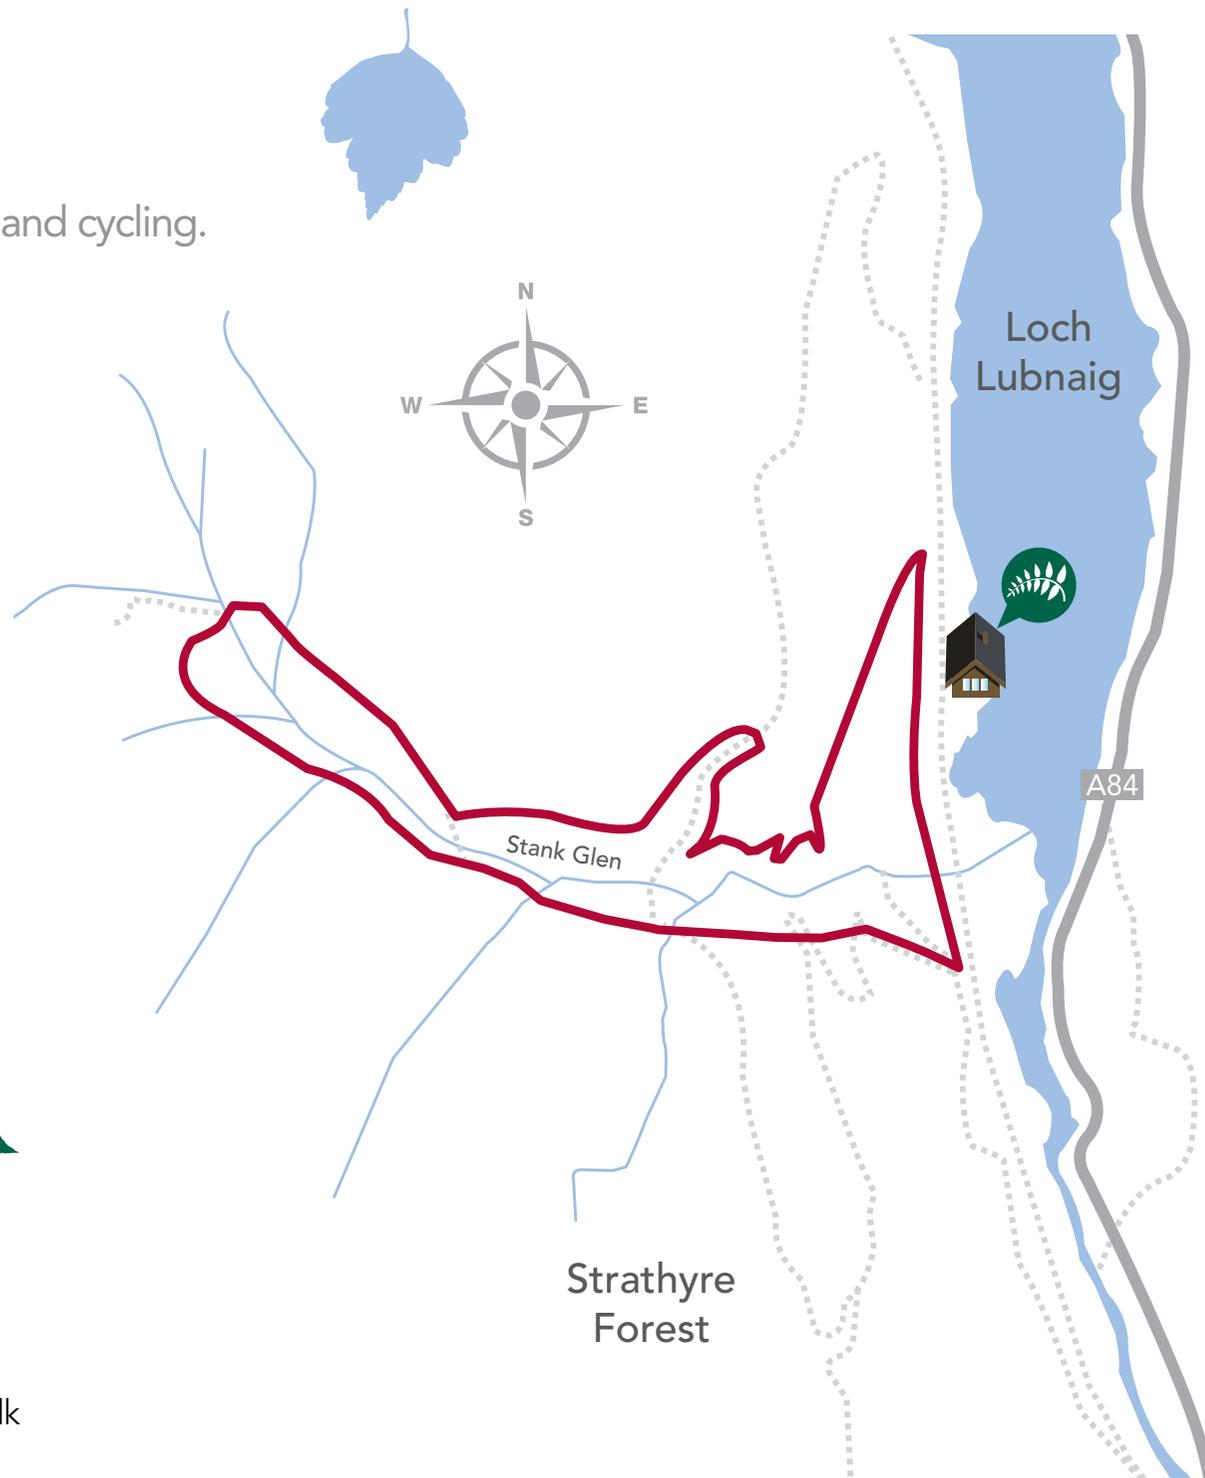

Turn left to join the smaller path downhill. This is a fairly steep descent and includes some rocky steps so care should be taken when conditions are wet and/or icy.

There is a viewing point of the Stank Burn Waterfalls to the right. Stank Glen and Ben Ledi can be seen beyond the waterfall.

Continue down through the young mixed woodland and eventually down to the main cabin road.

Strathyre

Tracks and trails for walking and cycling.

Key

-  (3.75 miles) Stank Glen walk
-  Other woodland trails

Strathyre

Stank Glen walk

Follow the red marker posts for a highly recommended walk into Stank Glen. This is possibly the best walk from the cabin site, taking you to the foot of Ben Ledi.

Start: Strathyre Forest Retreat

Length: 6km/3.75 miles

Walk Time: Allow 2 .5 hours

Difficulty: Moderate/strenuous

From the Forest Retreat facing the loch, follow the road left. The turn left up behind Cabin 19. This is an old forest road which gently climbs up behind the Cabins.

Follow the path round to the right where it steepens and zig zags up alongside Stank Burn.

There are a number of rocky steps so care should be taken when conditions are wet and/or icy. Halfway up the steps there is a viewing point of the Stank Burn Waterfalls to the right. Stank Glen and Ben Ledi can be seen beyond the waterfall (a great rest stop)!

Return to the main path and continue up the steps to meet a wide logging road.

Turn right, then once this reaches its highest point, take the first left on another logging road rather than continuing downhill.

This gently climbs into Stank Glen where you have brilliant views all around (on a clear day)!

You now have two choices of where you can loop back around to join the logging road again.

The first is an obvious loop around to the left avoiding a burn crossing.

The second (if you still have some more energy), continue on until you reach a crossing point over some boulders and over Stank Burn to your left. This should be avoided after heavy rain or if you don't fancy the risk of getting your feet wet!

Continue down to meet the logging road again, turn right then almost immediately left to meet the smaller path down through the Spruce woodland with Stank Burn on your left.

The Ben Ledi hill path then takes you back down to the cabin road, turn left and follow the road back to the cabins.

